Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)

Since its founding in 1997, CEPA has formed many successful relationships with a variety of organizations worldwide that support its mission in different capacities.

One of these relationships is with the CEPA Foundation, a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization. The CEPA Foundation is able to advance and enrich CEPA's education abroad programming and its CSR initiatives in developing countries.

Through collaborative efforts like this, CEPA is making quality academic experiences accessible to all.

About us

For over 20 years, CEPA has been successfully offering customized group programs and educationally focused itineraries for university professors and students around the world.

The multilingual and multinational team at CEPA is dedicated to maintaining the highest standards of excellence in everything that we do.

*CEPA is a provider we have worked with successfully and will continue to partner with on future programs for many great reasons. They value international education just as much as we do. They offer comprehensive quality support, keep programs affordable, prioritize health and safety, and have excellent follow up and follow through. Their staff is excellent, and they take great care in learning more about what went well and what could be improved after the program. We love CEPA!

Our University Partners

We place our partners at the heart of everything we do. They are the cornerstone of our organization and core values: trust, dedication, quality, and personal service are part of each and every partnership.

Together, we create custom designed study abroad programs that are based on the learning objectives unique to your courses.

Your Service Guarantee

A well-thought-out itinerary begins with an organized planning process, our expert knowledge of the destinations, close connections to local communities and cultures. By fostering these networks on a continual basis, we can provide comprehensive and flexible options which go above and beyond any expectations.

The health and safety of students and faculty leaders is our top priority. Being informed and prepared as best as we can to handle unexpected situations, no matter how small or large, are key factors that help ensure the well-being of CEPA program participants.

European Study Centers (ESC)

CEPA proudly owns and operates two beautiful study centers in the heart of Europe (pictured below). Student groups have the unique opportunity to stay in charming, historical buildings as part of their short or long-term faculty-led program.

Individual students can enroll at an ESC for a study abroad semester, take classes in English, and earn US semester transfer credits.

“During my time in Strasbourg, I learned about economies, populations, and political situations of countries that I previously didn't know where they were on a map. I learned about myself and broadened my horizons on other cultures, as well as gained connections and friends from all around the world.”
